💡 Negotiation Points

No Reciprocal Obligations: Company can change terms, terminate at-will, and revoke benefits while employee is bound by extensive restrictions The contract appears designed to maximize company control while minimizing employee rights and protections. ### 1. Limit Intellectual Property Assignment Request: Restrict IP assignment to work-related inventions only Proposed Language: "Work Product conceived, developed, or created by Employee during working hours using Company resources and relating directly to Company's current business" Why it Matters: Protects personal projects and side work unrelated to employment ### 2. Reduce Non-Compete Scope and Duration Request: Limit to 6 months, specific competitors only, and reasonable geographic scope Proposed

Language: "For six (6) months following termination, Employee shall not work for direct competitors [list specific companies] within 25 miles of Company offices" Why it Matters: Preserves ability to earn a living while still protecting legitimate company interests ### 3. Remove Unilateral Modification Rights Request: Require mutual agreement for contract changes Proposed Language: "This Agreement may only be modified by written agreement signed by both parties" Why it Matters: Prevents company from reducing compensation or benefits without employee consent ### 4. Balance Arbitration Terms Request: Neutral arbitration with shared costs Proposed Language: "Arbitration under AAA rules, held in [neutral location], with each party bearing their own attorney fees and sharing arbitration costs equally" Why it Matters: Ensures fair dispute resolution process ### 5. Add Severance and PTO Protections Request: Severance pay and PTO payout upon termination Proposed Language: "Upon termination without cause, Company shall pay [X weeks] severance and unused accrued PTO at Employee's then-current salary rate" Why it Matters: Provides financial protection during job transition and compensates for earned time off ### 6. Limit Social Media Restrictions Request: Remove post-employment restrictions and allow reasonable commentary Proposed Language: "During employment, Employee shall not make disparaging public statements about Company. This restriction ends upon termination of employment." Why it Matters: Preserves free speech rights after employment ends
